

MISSISSIPPI JUDICIAL BRANCH

In Mississippi the judicial branch of government has three components: the Supreme Court, the Court of Appeals, and the Trial Courts.

SUPREME COURT

Qualifications: A qualified elector of the Supreme court district in which election is sought, at least 30 years of age, a practicing attorney, and a citizen of the State for 5 years. Miss. Const. of 1890, Art. VI, Secs. 150 and 250; Miss. Code Ann. Sec. 23-15-993 (1972). Qualifying fee is $200.

Duties: The Supreme Court is the state's court of last resort. It is composed of nine elected justices, three from each of the state's three supreme court districts. Their eight-year terms are staggered to provide continuity. The Supreme Court hears appeals from Mississippi's two courts of general jurisdiction: circuit and chancery. In limited circumstances, it may also hear direct appeals from county courts. In addition to appellate jurisdiction, the Supreme Court has the power to issue extraordinary writs. The nine justices may sit in en banc (all members participating) or in three-judge panels.

Reserved to the Supreme Court are death penalty cases, appeals involving utility rates, annexations, bond issues, election contests, statutes held unconstitutional by a lower court, cases involving attorney discipline; judicial performance; certified questions from a federal court, cases involving a major question of first impression; fundamental and urgent issues of broad public importance requiring prompt determination; substantial constitutional questions concerning the validity of a statute, ordinance, court rule; or administrative rule or regulation; and issues where there is an inconsistency or conflict in court decisions.

THE COURT OF APPEALS

Qualifications: A qualified elector, at least 30 years of age, a practicing attorney and a citizen of the State for 5 years immediately preceding the election. Miss. Code Ann. Sec. 9-4-5 (1972). The qualifying fee is $200.

Duties: The Court of Appeals was created in 1994 and began sitting the following year. It is the state's only intermediate court and hears only appeals assigned it by the Supreme Court.

The Court of Appeals is composed of ten elected judges, two from each Congressional district. Their terms are for eight years and are staggered to provide continuity. The chief justice of the Supreme Court appoints the chief judge of the Court of Appeals.

TRIAL COURTS

Mississippi's trial court system consists of two general jurisdiction courts (circuit and chancery) and three limited jurisdiction courts (county, justice, and municipal).

Circuit Courts

Twenty-two circuit courts have original jurisdiction over all civil and criminal matters not vested exclusively in another court. Circuit judges are elected in non-partisan races to four-year terms. Most circuit court cases are heard by juries, although some circumstances may permit bench trials. Circuit judges have the power to issue extraordinary writs.

Chancery Courts

Twenty chancery courts have jurisdiction over matters involving equity, divorce, alimony, probate, guardianship, and sanity. In those counties with no county court, chancery courts have exclusive jurisdiction over juvenile matters. Their jurisdiction over equity matters involving less than $75,000 is concurrent with county courts. Chancery court judges, often called chancellors, are elected in non-partisan races to four-year terms. Most chancery court cases are non-jury proceedings, although juries may be impaneled in certain circumstances.

County Courts

Nineteen counties have established county courts. County court judges are elected in non-partisan races to four-year terms. They have exclusive jurisdiction over matters involving eminent domain, partition of personal property unlawful entry and detainer, and juvenile matters.

County courts have concurrent jurisdiction with justice courts in all matters, civil and criminal; and concurrent jurisdiction with circuit and chancery courts in all matters of law and equity up to $200,000. They may also adjudicate certain non-capital felony cases transferred by the circuit courts.

Justice Courts

Justice courts have jurisdiction in all civil cases involving amounts of $2,500 or less. They conduct preliminary hearings in felony cases and have concurrent jurisdiction with circuit courts over criminal matters where punishment cannot exceed a fine and sentence of one year in county jail. Justice courts also handle preliminary matters committed inside the county, but outside of city limits. Each county is divided into justice court districts, the number determined by population. Judges are elected in partisan elections to four-year terms.

District Attorneys

Qualifications: A District Attorney must be a qualified elector of the district and a practicing attorney admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of Mississippi for two years. Miss. Code Ann. Sec. 25-31-1 (1972). The qualifying fee is $100.

Duties: There are 22 district attorneys in Mississippi, each assigned to a Circuit Court district. District attorneys are prosecutors who represent the people of Mississippi in all criminal matters originating in a trial court except in those counties with county prosecuting attorneys.

County Prosecuting Attorneys

Qualifications: A County Prosecuting Attorney must be a qualified elector and a regular licensed and practicing attorney. Miss. Code Ann. Sec. 19-23-1 (1972). The qualifying fee is $15.

Duties: The county prosecuting attorney represents the state in all felony matters before the county's justice courts and county courts. Additionally, the county attorney represents the state in criminal cases appealed from county court to circuit court, can present any matter to the grand jury, and has full responsibility for all misdemeanor youth court proceedings and all other cases not specified to the district attorney. He can also be appointed by the district attorney as designee. In counties where no county attorney is elected, one may be employed by the county board of supervisors to represent certain cases.
